General Research and Military Experience

Rababy & Associates has developed and implemented the Rapid Response Intelligence Process (R2IP) to provide timely and experienced service for tailored analytical products.

Assessments

Our products utilize thousands of global resources using experienced analysts in the production of individual tailored products. Our access to commercial, off-the-shelf technology to research information provides our clients with solid, concise and pertinent assessments based on their needs.

Military Consultants

Our company has been supporting the military for over 30 years – from aviation to ground operations, in both peacetime and war – with expert advice in support of our nation.

Customized Estimates

Estimates are customized for personnel, companies and governments, and include: global threat monitoring, regional and functional analysis, and country-specific intelligence and security covering 218 countries.

Language Services

Rababy & Associates can collect and analyze information in foreign languages, aid in cross-cultural communication and prevent potential misunderstandings through: monitoring, reporting and analysis of foreign media; translation utilizing human and machine capabilities; and recognition of the impact of cultural nuances upon language.

Business Analysis

Our company can aid American business by: requirements gathering and maintenance; process mapping of current and future state processes to streamline and increase productivity; and gap analysis software testing.

Training

Clients have a variety of training options to fit their unique needs: small business training classes; foreign culture training classes; intelligence research, analysis, development and dissemination; on-site over-the-shoulder training; and creation of user manuals.

★ Background

Founded in 2007, Rababy & Associates is a military, intelligence and culture consulting firm specializing in research, analysis and production of assessments for industry, academia and the government.

The information revolution of the 21st Century can be overwhelming and often contradictory. The analysts at Rababy & Associates specialize in capturing the pertinent and critical information from the "noise" and presenting the data in a usable format in the most timely manner.

Rababy & Associates helps "quiet" the noise by providing tailored assessments and estimates saving our clients time and money. We have applied the tactics, techniques and procedures utilized in the production of classified intelligence to the unclassified world of industry and government.

R&A has assembled a small team of experienced analysts who possess over 100 years of combined experience in the collection, analysis and production of finished intelligence products tailored to our clients needs.
